BOTTOM LINE UP FRONT

Two questions protect everything you build: do you have real UK territorial exclusivity, and who owns the UK customer relationships, data and brand if the partnership ends? Get both answered and documented before investing time and capital — an undocumented answer is the classic way a market-builder gets displaced after doing the hard work.

1. Exclusivity ?

WHY IT MATTERS

If you build the UK market and RRUP can appoint another partner or sell direct into your territory, your effort funds a market you don't control. Confirm: is UK exclusivity granted, for how long, and what conditions (e.g. performance minimums) sustain or revoke it? (Pack 22, Q8.)

2. IP & customer ownership

Asset	Question to resolve
The software/IP	Licensed to the UK operation, or owned by RRUP with you as agent?
UK customer contracts	Who holds them if the partnership ends?
Customer data	Who controls it; how is it handled under UK GDPR (Pack 15)?
SalesOps CRM UK brand	Who owns the UK brand and web presence?

3. The protective principle

Value you create (customer relationships, market presence, UK brand equity) should be protected so that a partnership breakdown doesn't strip it from you. This is exactly what a well-drafted agreement secures — and exactly what a verbal understanding fails to.

Implication

These points feed the terms checklist and the solicitor brief. They are not adversarial toward RRUP — a good partner will want clarity here too; ambiguity serves no one and breeds the kind of dispute the reset is meant to avoid.
