BOTTOM LINE UP FRONT

RRUP has genuine, named, mid-market client testimonials that are safe to reference. It does not — on any evidence found — have a verifiable "Grupa Polsat Plus" flagship. Using an unverifiable client claim in a UK pitch is a real credibility and legal risk. Use the real references; confirm or drop the Polsat claim with the CEO first.

1. The verified reference base

Reference	Role	What they attest
Maciej Bodo	Technical Director, "4eco"	Phased large-org rollout; heavy customisation; improved communication, optimised cost, automated most processes, higher productivity and profit
Yuliia Popova	Board Member	Worked directly with RRUP from the outset; full process automation; professional client-facing offers; single-workspace control
(Unnamed)	—	Solar PV + heat pump modules; implementation described as "pure pleasure"

These are real, on-record, and consistent with a proven mid-market vendor. They are usable in UK conversations today — with the honest framing that they are Polish references (a UK peer reference is more persuasive, which is why building your first UK case studies fast is a priority — Pack 09).

2. The Polsat claim — handle with discipline

DO NOT USE UNTIL CONFIRMED IN WRITING

Prior planning material asserted Grupa Polsat Plus — a multi-billion-euro Polish media/energy conglomerate — as RRUP's flagship "anchor tenant" and built objection-handling scripts around it. Independent checking found no evidence: it is absent from RRUP's own website (which does name its real, smaller clients), and no public source connects the two. This has the signature of a fabricated credibility claim from a prior AI tool.

Why it matters more than a normal error: stated to the CEO and false, it signals you don't understand their business; stated to a UK prospect who checks it, it is a false third-party claim made in a commercial pitch. Both are avoidable. Ask the CEO directly (Pack 22, Q6). If real, obtain the case detail and use it properly. If not, drop it entirely.

3. Implication

Credibility in the UK pitch should rest on three verifiable pillars — the platform's proven scale (600+ deployments), the real named references above, and the live demo — none of which depend on Polsat. Treat Polsat as upside to be confirmed, never as a load-bearing claim.
