BOTTOM LINE UP FRONT

Operating in the UK means handling personal data — installer contacts and, via the CRM, their customers' data. That triggers UK GDPR: ICO registration, a lawful basis for processing, and a Data Processing Agreement with RRUP's EU servers. All are cheap and fast to put in place, and non-negotiable from formation.

The baseline obligations

Obligation	Action
ICO registration	Register the UK entity with the Information Commissioner's Office
Lawful basis	Legitimate interest for B2B outreach (with opt-out); consent where required
Data Processing Agreement	With RRUP (data flows to EU servers) — controller/processor roles defined
Data subject rights	Process for access/erasure requests
Security	Appropriate technical/organisational measures
Records	Record of processing activities

CROSS-BORDER FLOW

Because SalesOps CRM's servers are in the EU, UK → EU personal-data transfer must be covered by an appropriate mechanism and a DPA with RRUP (Pack 14). This is a specific, checkable item — confirm the data architecture with RRUP (Pack 20) and paper it with the solicitor.

Boundary

This is a compliance baseline, not legal advice — the specifics (especially the cross-border mechanism) should be confirmed by the solicitor engaged for the partnership (Pack 14). But the obligations themselves are clear and standard.

Implication

Handled at formation, compliance is cheap and routine. Ignored, it becomes a liability (Pack 19). It goes on the day-one launch checklist (Pack 21).
