BOTTOM LINE UP FRONT

By Year 3, under base assumptions: a self-funding UK operation with a few hundred retained installer customers, a small regional team, a proven playbook, and the optionality to pursue larger deals (the SAP play) and national reach. A genuinely valuable small-to-mid business, built capital-efficiently.

The three-year arc

Year	State	From
1 — Prove	Beachhead cluster; ~30 customers (base); lean, loan-funded	Packs 05/16
2 — Expand	Adjacent segments/regions; first hires; ~90–120 customers	Packs 06/16
3 — Scale	Self-funding; ~200–300 customers; Tier-3 optionality; ~£350k+ your-share revenue	Packs 09/16

THE HONEST DESTINATION

This is a strong small-to-mid business outcome, not a unicorn — and framed that way deliberately. In an equity structure it's real enterprise value; in an agency structure it's substantial recurring income. Which you're building toward is the deal-structure question (Pack 14). Either way, the arc is coherent and the base case reaches a place worth the effort.

Implication

The three-year vision is the north star for the launch and growth plans (Pack 21/05). All figures are illustrative (Pack 16) until pilot data and the CEO's answers firm them up.
