BOTTOM LINE UP FRONT

Before a single deal, the likely win/loss pattern is predictable: we win small, growing, price-sensitive installers on price model and proof; we lose large or MCS-depth-obsessed buyers to Payaca and enterprise buyers to Reonic. These are hypotheses to validate and update with real pilot data (Pack 10).

Win / loss matrix (hypotheses ⚠)

Versus	We tend to WIN when...	We tend to LOSE when...
The status quo (spreadsheets + WhatsApp)	The installer is scaling and feeling the pain of dropped hand-offs, slow quotes, manual commission	They're too small/informal to need structure yet
Payaca	Buyer is small/cost-sensitive; values per-seat growth pricing; wants multi-vertical breadth	Buyer wants deepest UK-native MCS features and will pay the flat fee for them
Reonic	Buyer is a small/mid installer wanting fast, affordable adoption	Buyer is enterprise-scale wanting heavy project-design/simulation

The three recurring win themes

1. "Proven, not a gamble." 600+ deployments answers the newcomer objection every time.
2. "Priced to start small." Per-seat beats flat-fee for the growing installer.
3. "One system for all your trades." Breadth beats single-vertical tools for combo installers.

The three recurring loss risks

MANAGE THESE PROACTIVELY

(1) UK-localisation doubt — mitigated by demo-verifying MCS/DNO/ECO4 handling (Pack 20) and honest scoping (Pack 22 Q7). (2) "You're new to the UK" — mitigated by the proven-platform framing and fast first UK references (Pack 09). (3) Demo reliability — the demo instance was down once; never pitch without a confirmed working environment.

Implication

The sales motion (Pack 09) and pipeline stages (Pack 10) should be built to steer toward the win conditions (small, scaling, price-sensitive, multi-trade) and qualify out the loss conditions early, rather than chasing every deal.
