BOTTOM LINE UP FRONT

The upside comes from three compounding expansions: more verticals (8 available, 2 used at launch), more segments (small → mid → enterprise via the SAP play), and more geography (region → national). Each is a lever already inside the platform — growth is expansion of a proven base, not a new bet.

The three growth vectors

Vector	From → To	Enabler
Vertical	Solar/HP → all 8 trades	Platform breadth (Pack 02)
Segment	Small installers → mid → enterprise	SAP co-existence play (Pack 09)
Geography	North West → national	Reference density flywheel (Pack 05)

WHY THE UPSIDE IS CREDIBLE

Each vector uses capability the platform already has — more verticals are already built, the enterprise play uses the existing API, national reach is the same motion repeated. The upside is not "if we build X"; it's "if the proven motion works, here are the adjacent markets it unlocks." That's a lower-risk growth story than most early-stage plans offer.

The honest ceiling

The obtainable market is a bounded niche (Pack 03 SOM) — this is a strong small-to-mid business opportunity, not a billion-pound outcome. Framing it honestly as such is more credible than inflating it, and matches the capital-efficient, loan-first funding posture.

Implication

The growth story gives a backer a real reason to expect the business to compound — while the honest ceiling keeps expectations, and valuations, grounded.
