BOTTOM LINE UP FRONT

Build a small library of proof and practical value, not a blog treadmill: UK installer case studies, a compliance-workflow explainer, an ROI/"cost of the leaky bucket" calculator, and demo videos. Each asset directly supports a sales conversation.

The core assets

Asset	Job
UK installer case studies	The single most persuasive asset — build as first UK customers land
"Cost of the status quo" calculator	Turns the leaky-bucket pitch (Pack 08/09) into a self-serve hook
MCS/compliance workflow explainer	Demonstrates domain fluency to a compliance-anxious buyer
Vertical demo videos	Let prospects self-qualify before a live demo

The principle

PROOF OVER VOLUME

In a trust-driven trade, one credible UK peer case study outperforms fifty generic blog posts. Content effort concentrates on proof and practical tools that a salesperson can send mid-deal, not on SEO volume for its own sake.

Boundary

Case studies must be real and permissioned — never fabricated (Pack 02 discipline). Until UK references exist, lean on the verified platform proof points and Polish references, honestly framed.

Implication

Content is a sales-enablement function here, not a standalone demand channel. It compounds as UK references accumulate (Pack 05 flywheel).
