BOTTOM LINE UP FRONT

Every likely objection has an honest, verified answer already in this package. The rule: never bluff. A flagged "we'll confirm that in your trial" beats a confident wrong claim — it is also, for a newcomer, more credible.

Objection → response matrix

Objection	Response (verified)
"You're new to the UK."	"The company isn't new — 600+ live deployments and 15,000+ users. What's new is our UK operation, which means you get founder-level attention. And you can prove it yourself in a free 30-day trial."
"Why not Payaca?"	"Payaca's excellent — and £999+/month flat plus £1,500 to onboard. We're priced per seat, so you start at a fraction of that and scale as you grow. Try both."
"Will it handle UK compliance (MCS/DNO/ECO4)?"	"Let's confirm exactly that in your trial with your real jobs — I'll show you rather than tell you." (Do not over-claim; Pack 20.)
"Switching is too disruptive."	"That's why a dedicated implementation lead migrates your data and gets your team live inside the first week of the free trial — no big-bang switch."
"Can I see a UK reference?"	"We're building our first UK references now — you could be an early one on preferential terms. Meanwhile here are our proven deployment numbers and Polish references."

The one rule

NEVER DO THIS

Do not invoke the Polsat claim to answer the credibility objection (Pack 02) — it is unverified. Do not assert UK compliance features you haven't demo-verified. Do not quote a fixed UK price before RRUP sets it. The proven-scale + free-trial combination answers the credibility question honestly and well.

Implication

This matrix is refined continuously by the boardroom red-team simulation (Pack 5A / _SIMULATION) and by real objections from the field (Pack 10). It is a living document — update it as new objections surface.
